TEACHER 'S TALK

GOOD MANNERS

Humans are the highest and unique creations of God in terms of intelligence. As you all know, we have the capacity to think, talk, and act accordingly. So we must know how to behave well with others.

The meaning of good manners is treating other people with courtesy, politeness, and showing correct public behaviour. You have also seen that a person with good manners shows respect towards feelings and sentiments of others. So we should be polite and humble to others. When required, we must use words like "sorry, Thankyou, please"

We must behave in a good way to our parents and elders. We should not use abusive language and learn the habit of sharing with others.

You know, practicing good manners and following them all through the day bring sunshine. It adds qualities to life. If someone talks to you badly, still don't reply to them in the same manner, creating an effective interaction with your friends or the public. Soon you will become popular and get success in your field.

RESPECT

I would like to share a few words on the topic Respect. There is a saying, 'Treat others you wish to be treated'. If you wish to be respected, it is important that you also give respect to others.

Respect is a universal act of displaying admiration and love for other people. It won't come naturally in one's behaviour. It needs to be learned.

We can show respect by listening, serving, being kind, being polite, being thankful to others, etc. It is important to respect everyone regardless of whether you like or dislike them. So children, if they respect you, respect them. If they disrespect you, still respect them. Do not allow the actions of others to decrease your good manners. Because you represent yourself, not others.

SASHITHA.K. S

THOMAS EDISON & HENRY FORD

Do you have friends?

Today I would like to talk about two friends. Those friends are very special to us because they are the two legendary innovators, giants of the 20th century industry. The first one is Thomas Alva Edison.

In 1896, Thomas Edison, the great inventor who invented the electric bulb, was working on an idea to design a car when he heard that a young man who worked in his company had created an experimental car.

Edison met the young man at his company's party in New York & interviewed him about the car. He was impressed!. Edison had the same idea as the young man, but he was considering electricity as the power source while the young man used a gasoline engine to power the car. He slammed his fist down & shouted "young man, that's the thing! You have it! I think you are on to something! I encourage you to continue your pursuits!"

With these words of encouragement from the most highly respected inventor in the United States at that time, the young man continued his work, invented a car, and became wealthy. The young man was HENRY Ford, the founder of Ford Motor Company.

Edison was Ford's boyhood hero. While Ford admired Edison's pioneering work in electricity and other fields. Thomas Edison made Henry Ford believe in himself & got a friend for lifetime! .The mutual respect formed the foundation of their friendship.

On December 9, 1914, Thomas Edison's laboratory & factory got burnt. He was 67 years old & the damage was too expensive for insurance cover. Before the ashes were cold, Henry Ford handed Edison a cheque of $750,000 with a note saying that Edison could have more if he needed it!

In 1916, Henry Ford relocated his home to the building next to Edison's home and when Edison couldn't walk and was confined to a wheelchair by his doctors, Henry Ford also bought himself a wheelchair so that he could run wheelchair races with his friend and mentor!

Then, in one last proof point of this incredible friendship, Edison's son, Charles, captured his father's last breath in a test tube and presented it to the grief-stricken Ford. He kept it close for the rest of his life.

Friendship is one of the most beautiful relationships people can have. Friendship is a mixed bag, and there is every emotion in it and many ups and downs along the way. Friends should always respect each other, understand each other, and support each other throughout. So children...Don't ever be jealous of other people's success. Encourage each other to become best friends just like Edison and Ford.

Dhanya K B

There was a factory in a village in which nearly 1,000 employees were working. A watchman was also there. Daily, he gives morning wishes to the employees when they enter the factory and evening wishes when they leave the factory. But no one gave any wishes in return. Either because of their busy schedule or negligence.

But one man, he was the technical supervisor, daily gave wishes to the watchman. It became a routine, and the watchman started to notice the arrival and departure of the supervisor.

One day, as usual, the supervisor entered the factory gate by giving wishes to the watchman.

In the evening, he couldn't get the supervisor's good evening message. He has doubts whether the supervisor left the factory or not. At last, when the last employee left the factory, the watchman entered the factory and searched everywhere. At last, he found that the supervisor was sitting on a chair in his cabin.

The watchman rushed to him. He was on a semi conscious level. He was sinking. The timely help of the watchman saved the life of the supervisor. Dear children, we have to learn a lesson from this event.

Be kind! Be sincere and be empathetic. Kindness will be rewarded at any time, from anywhere.
